COMMUNICATION AID

EDUCATIONAL TOOLS: Carrie Brazer, executive director of the Carrie Brazer Center for Autism and Alternative Approaches, Inc., and David Lawrence Jr., chairman of The Children's Trust, observe behaviorist Claudia Devia as she helps one of the students at the center work on a new Chat-PC he was recently given.

The Children's Trust recently provided more autistic children at the Carrie Brazer Center for Autism and Alternative Approaches, Inc., with handheld computers that enable them to communicate.

The Chat-PC is a device that allows autistic children to interact with people who do not know sign language.

The funds for the handheld computers were made available by David Lawrence Jr., chairman of The Children's Trust, who later observed a class after the students received the Chat-PCs. Lawrence retired as publisher of The Miami Herald in 1999.

BROAD PRIZE FOR URBAN EDUCATION

Miami-Dade County Public Schools was recently named runner-up for the Broad Prize for Urban Education and will receive $125,000 in scholarships for graduating seniors.
